InVision
PHOTO FESTIVAL

This exhibit is a small sample of the photographs taken by David L. Rehrig and Frank T. Smith at the Allentown State Hospital during the period of 2009–2011. One of the peripheral buildings, Stepping Stone, which is shown in some of the interior shots, was deteriorating and was leveled some time after it was photographed in 2009. The main complex of buildings is still largely intact and, at this point, is empty, but has been well maintained. These photos provide an impression and record of the architecture and the space that was at one time occupied by nearly two thousand patients and staff.
